

Disability Passport

Sophie Morgan

As disabled people we're often asked to share our most personal and private information which can kind of leave us feeling exposed but on the other hand when our needs aren't met we're left vulnerable. So, what do we do in order to be able to communicate with service providers? We need to explain our needs but we want to be able to do it in a way we trust so that's where this is a real solution. This solution is in the hands of disabled people ourselves. It's allowing us to control what we share, and how, and with whom so that we can get the same or priority access to goods and services that we need.
